Introduction.

The first person of the name of Warren whom we find was a Danish Knight, in the Norman army, which made its final conquest in 912. The first introduction of the name on English soil was by one of his descendants, William, Earl of Warren, a Norman Baron, who accompanied William the Conqueror on his expedition into England in 1066. All English-speaking Warrens are supposed to have descended from him.

The compiler of this little volume late in life began to ask himself who were his ancestors. The desire continued to increase until a beginning was made, and the material accumulated so much that he conceived the idea that he might include all the descendants of James Warren, who settled in Kittery, Me., afterwards Berwick.

After long and patient research we are satisfied that this James Warren was our first Warren ancestor in this country. There are missing links in all lines from James Warren first; that of John of the third generation is the nearest complete. We have tried by extended inquiry, searching church, town, and county records, and various town histories, to fill out these missing lines. In some instances, as in the town of Berwick, the records are missing; again, those who might have helped to the desired information, did not seem to have interest enough in the subject to reply to our inquiries ; and so, after five or six years of earnest research, we conclude to offer this incomplete record, feeling that what has been gathered with so much trouble should not be lost, as another generation would find it still more difficult to gather much that we have. Even in the present generation many names are missing that it seems should be here, but we have not been able to get them. We have added in some instances short biographical sketches of those persons we have known, or could get from others. Besides these searchings of records, we are greatly indebted to several of the Warren descendants, to whom, one and all, we extend our thanks for all assistance rendered. I am also indebted to my wife for her valuable assistance.

Trusting this record, imperfect though it is, may be a pleasure and also a help to those by the name of Warren, descendants of a worthy ancestor, and with the hope that some one of them may be able to complete it, we subscribe ourself one of them.

Explanations and Abbreviations.

James and Margaret Warren, the emigrants, were the first generation ; their children the second ; their grandchildren the third, and so on. A small figure placed a little above and to the right of each name designates the generation to which he or she belongs ; thus James<sup>3</sup>, on page 13, signifies he was of the third generation.

The ancestral line in parentheses follows the name of each head of the family.

The number at the left of the name refers to that one as the head of a family which can be easily traced ; thus : 30. James<sup>5</sup> on page 17 refers to 30. James<sup>5</sup> on page 20.

Where a wife's name is in parentheses the reader will understand that the name so enclosed was her maiden name.

b. signifies born ; bapt., baptized ; rec., record ; m., married ; un m., unmarried ; pub., published ; d., died ; dau., daughter ; res., residence or resides ; rem., removed.

Warren Genealogy

Comprising the Family of James Warren of Kittery, Me.

1. JAMES Warren was in Kittery, Me., before 1656. ✓
Canadian records, on the authority of his daughter Grisel, says: "He was born in Berwick, Scotland." Other records would seem to show he was born in England. However, it is very evident, if born in Scotland, he was of English descent; his wife was Margaret, a native of Ireland. Miss S. O. Jewett, in her sketch of Berwick in the New England Magazine, says: "When Cromwell gained a victory over the royal troops at Dunbar in the North, and not knowing how to dispose better of his prisoners, he banished them from the realm of England and sent them to America.
From Boston they were despatched down the coast to find fellowship in the more conservative royalist colony planted by Gorges, and were given lands in what is still known as Scotland Parish, in the upper part of York." Among these prisoners, says tradition, was this James Warren.
[In Vol. II., page 280, of Palfrey's History of New England, there is a note in reference to these prisoners.]

James Warren settled in Kittery, in the upper part of the town, now South Berwick. The original settlement was at Quampeagan Falls, Great Works River, which was incorporated as the Parish of Unity. The Parish of Unity was also sometimes called Quampeagan Landing, which is now South Berwick. Newichewannock was the Indian name for Berwick, and was in use as late as 1713 (according to Berwick records). Cow Cove, a charming inlet to the river below the lower landing, preserves the tradition that the first cows brought to Maine and New Hampshire were landed here, and Cow Cove is the river front of the farm of James Warren first, in 1656 ; the picture was taken by Rev. E. S. Stackpole, and is inserted by his courtesy. Mr. Stackpole says : "It embraces the whole front of the Warren farm."

The first grant of land to this James Warren was on the hill, and was very poor land ; he had grants also near Warren's pond. He held various offices in the town, being Selectman for several years. He died in 1702 ; his will was made Dec. 9, 1700, and proved Dec. 24, 1702. He gave to his son Gilbert the forty acres of land bought of John Davis ; he gave to his son James all other lands and buildings in the township of Kittery or elsewhere (this included the homestead, which was the original grant of July 15, 1656, at Cow Cove) ; he gave to his daughters Margaret and Grisel, and granddaughter, Jane Grant, five shillings each ; and to his grandson, James Stagpole, some cattle ; to his wife Margaret all the rest of his estate, and no legacies before mentioned to be demanded till her decease. Margaret, his widow, made her will Dec. 13,

1712, probated Oct. 15, 1713, and mentions children—
Gilbard, James and Margaret.

She attended the Academy in Fryeburg, and afterwards taught school. She was a woman of courage and firmness, a quiet, home-abiding one. All who knew her loved and respected her. She d. Sept. 5, 1873.

Isaiah was left while a young man, upon the death of his parents, with the care of younger brothers, and was executor of his father's will. He was in business, wholesale and retail general country trade, until within a few years of his death ; was one of the strongest teetotalers, and was among the first to carry into practical effect the Washingtonian movement, even stopping the selling of liquor in his business. He was a very successful business man, and a large land owner both east and west. Was moderator of town meeting several years, selectman for four years ; ever taking an active interest in all that pertained to the advancement of the town and a patron of every worthy cause. He served in the War of 1812 ; served in Capt. Philip Eastman's Company, Massachusetts Militia, from Sept. 11 to Sept. 24, 1814 ; also in Capt. L. Richmond's Company, from Sept. 25 to Nov. 4, 1814, length of service, fifty-five days ; he belonged to the Artillery Company.

The home was not only one in the true sense of the word, but was one where all relatives were warmly welcomed, and there was dispensed the true-hearted hospitality, in which he was largely helped by his wife.

He took a deep interest in education, was desirous his children should have such advantages as would best fit them for their life work. He was Vice President of the Board of Trustees of Fryeburg Academy for several years, up to the time of his death. Was very influential in all church work, being a member of the Congregational Church, and his Christian patience was always in evidence under the most trying circumstances. He was an upright man, one of sterling integrity, and of whom can be truly said : "His word was as good as his bond." He d. Apr. 24, 1875.

Buck of Guilford, Me., in 1852; m. 2d, Almira G. Blaisdell of Bangor, in 1853; lives in Bangor. He lived on a farm after the death of his parents, till he was fourteen years of age. Then he lived with his brother Isaiah, attending Fryeburg Academy; being a good scholar, he made the most of his time spent here. His ambition was for a college education, and to be a physician; circumstances debarring him from this, he next was a clerk in a lawyer's office in Bangor, here acquiring much knowledge which was of inestimable value to him in later years when engaged in the real estate business. After this he went to Boston, Mass., and entered the brokerage business, being one of the sufferers in the financial panic of 1837; this is said to have developed his organ of caution. Through his business here he had come into possession of a store in Guilford, Me. Here he commenced business, and met the lady who became his wife; she was a teacher in town. After the death of his first wife he did very little business, but occupied himself with farming and the care of sixty acres of land in Bangor, which, at the time it came to him, was of very little value; but within twenty-five years such has been the growth of the city, that the field formerly a farm, is now intersected by streets, which are lined with houses. Like his brother Isaiah, he is a very strong temperance man, even refusing the use of any stimulant while feeble. In politics a Democrat, interested in all that is going on in the world, but never taking any active part in its political field. A letter written at the age of twenty-three, when in Boston in business, shows a remarkably keen analysis of lectures he had attended, among them one from Daniel Webster. He is still living, the last of the family.

JOSHUA WARREN.<sup>4</sup>

At the request of several descendants of Joshua Warren, the first settler in Deerwander, now Hollis, Me., we add the list of those descendants so far as we have been able to obtain them. Traditional accounts from several sources indicate strongly that he was a great grandson of the emigrant James. As we have the descendants of John<sup>3</sup> and Gilbert,<sup>3</sup> and for want of records, we can only suppose that he was a son of James, whose children we have been unable fully to trace, Mr. Lorenzo D. Warren of Worcester, Mass., and others, give us the following data :

Mr. L. D. Warren writes as follows, viz. : "Joshua Warren was born in Berwick, Me., or perhaps in York, about 1730. All that I know of him is what I have heard my grandfather, the second Joshua, say. I have heard him say several times that when he was twenty-one years old, which was in 1779, he made his grandfather and other relatives a visit at Berwick and York, Me. [From others in this line they write of these relatives in Berwick and York.] His grandfather was seventy or seventy-five years old at that time. One incident, out of several, I have heard him repeat in connection with this visit, to wit : he and his grandfather stood up and compared their heights ; they were both the same height — just six feet tall. His grandfather made him several small presents at this time ; two of them have fallen into my possession.

“Joshua<sup>4</sup> of Deerwander married Sarah —— and settled in Biddeford, Me., where his five children were born. His house was located on what is known as Water Street, corner of Sullivan Street. Dudley block is built on this site. He and his family moved into Deerwander in October, 1771, where he lived until his death, which probably occurred in June, 1813. He was a recruiting officer, for the English army, and raised a company and, as their Captain, entered the Indian and French War which was in progress from 1756 to 1763. Deerwander was the name of the last Indian chief of a tribe of the Narragansett Indians, who inhabited this valley. His wigwams stood in a field that belonged to the late Israel Warren, between the intersection of the public roads and a brook that flows into the field. Joshua's father left some property for him, as I have heard my grandfather speak of his father going to Berwick to get possession of some land his father had left him.”

We shall start this Joshua as the fourth generation, as he is considered a great grandson of the first James.

He enlisted for three years ; at the expiration of his service he returned home. He took part in several battles ; was in that at Quebec. When volunteers were called for he was one of the three to wade the Delaware River, Dec. 25, 1776, to see if it was fordable. As soon as they passed over, the army was ordered to follow. He captured the first Hessian at the battle of Trenton ; he went into winter quarters at Morristown, and the next winter at Valley Forge. When first married he lived with his father, but in the autumn of 1781 he moved into a house he had built on a farm adjoining his father's. He was at one time tax collector of the town.
